Note Some people confuse layers with frames or windows. Layers are a fundamental concept in Photoshop; they're more like backgrounds or panels that you place over your document. To create a new window on your computer screen, for example, you select File | New. You could also create a new window by double-clicking on a new frame or panel in a Photoshop image. Layers enable you to place any item you want on an image and then edit that item at any time. You can erase any item placed in a layer at any time. Layers also help organize your image by dividing it into chunks, which enable you to edit them as separate units. Some people refer to the layers palette as the layer stack, layer deck, or layer panel. The layer stack is an area of the Layers palette that lists the layers in a stack format, with each image on a separate stack. Each image contains up to 20 layers, or you can have up to 100 layers that contain up to 20 images each. When you add a layer

"The President is doing what he can to move forward in making sure that we're prepared for whatever comes," Pompeo told ABC's "This Week." "And I think it's important to recognize the extent to which he's leveraged international partners, the ability of other nations, and he's worked particularly with China, to make sure that we are all on the same page in terms of how to deal with an unconventional attack against our nation." AD AD Somewhat contradicting those words, Pompeo later added, "This is a President who is determined to see Russia in this — and China, and North Korea — as a threat to the U.S. and our allies and ourselves. And that's what's driving the strategy that we're implementing to make sure that we bring about the kind of change that is lasting, that is enduring, that is lasting the kind of defeat of ISIS, the defeat of al-Qaida, the defeat of these brutal gangs. And it's also a President who wants to see the sharing of the burdens, the burden of fighting terror and terrorism around the world through the organization of the international community." The comments from Pompeo came one day after Secretary of Defense Jim Mattis warned that he was concerned about rising tension between U.S. allies as American officials push to raise tariffs on Chinese goods. Mattis said he was "concerned about the effect this is having on our military." Pompeo walked back some of those comments in an interview with Fox News host Sean Hannity on Tuesday. "I won't defend the tariffs, but it doesn't mean I think President Trump should have been debating this with the French president about tariffs," Pompeo told Hannity. "It's the wrong forum to have this discussion, and I know that because I spent the last few days in Asia trying to engage our allies in the region, trying to reassure them that we're not going to allow China to encroach on their economic systems. It's not going to happen." Pompeo later returned to his comments on Fox on Wednesday. AD AD "Like I said yesterday, it is both good that the president puts on the pressure, he does, and it is bad that he's not careful to the effect that it has on our relationships with our allies," he said. "The president believes that we're dealing with
